The marriage of Roy Noble Davis and Miss Helen Newell was solemnize attended by Leonard Wolff as best man.

The dining table was laid with a Batlenberg cloth and the wedding cake stood in the center. In the center of this was inserted a boquet of natural bride's roses. Candles in red with red shades burned here.

In cutting the cake Miss Clara Fink received the thimble; Miss Leona Black the dime, and Mrs. Ysabel Flato the ring.

received the thimble, Miss Leona Diack the dime, and Mrs. Ysabel Flato the ring.

Punch was served in an enclosed porch, prettily decorated in smilax and draperies, by Miss Nellie Mae Bowen and Miss Stella Phipps. A salad course was served in the dining room. The bride's going away suit was, of heavy corded material in blue and her hat, a black velvet trimmed with a cerise plume. She was the recipient of many beautiful gifts.

Miss Newell has grown to womanhood in El Paso, with a large circle of friends, and is popular in the younger social set. The groom is the assistant passenger agent of the El Paso & Southwestern railroad. Mr. and Mrs. Davis went on their honeymoon to Chicago, Washington, New York and other eastern cities, leaving Thursday morning.

Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Presbyterian church, R. L. Maddox and Miss Emma C. Hancock were married by Rev. Charles L. Overstreet. The groom is from Hurley, N. M., and the bride is from Santa Rita. She was accompanied by Miss Block.

Fancy prices for copyrights of popular music reached a climax yesterday, when a music man, Leo Feist, paid the fantastic figure of $10,000 for the copyright of a song scarcely dry from the press, called "That's How I Need You." And yet Feist claims he will make a fortune on it at only a dime per copy, wholesale. Here is a portion of the chorus, clipped from a copy just received:

The regular club day meeting of the Woman's club was held on Wednesday afternoon at the Lamar school. It was "Public School Day." An Interesting program was in charge of Miss Emma program was in charge of Miss Emma-Lee Lott.

The first part was held in the kin-dergarien room, which was attractively decorated for the occasion in southern smilax and autumn leaves, with bowls of carnations at different parts of the room. The selections of the Lamar kindergarten were in charge of Miss Anna Washburn, assisted by Misses Emma Hoffman and Ernestine Murray.

This proved unusually interesting.

Anna Washburn, assisted by Misses Emma Hoffman and Ernestine Murray. This proved unusually interesting.

The first number was two songs by the children (a) "God is Love." (b) "Here is the Fall Time." They then marched and played characteristic games—the silent games, which trains the ear; the indian game, which trains the eye: merry-go-round, and the barnyard song. At the close, the tiny tota presented each guest with a paper basket of their own work, filled with salted almonds.

The meeting then adjourned to the auditorium, where the rest of the program was given. Miss Lott stated that the numbers on the program were strictly examples of the daily work of the achool children. The High School Glee club sang "The Lark Now Leaves His Watery Nest," and were accompanied by Miss Greta Palmer.

The first grade of the Lamar school, of Miss Mary None's class, gave an interesting lesson on nature study and told many instructive things about birds.

Miss Julia Morse, of the Vilas school

Miss Julia Morse, of the Vilas school gave a splendidly written composition in English work, in the form of travel from Maine to Mexico.

Marion Howe, of the Sunset school, sang sweetly a "lullaby," accompanied by Mrs. W. D. Howe.

Winston McConnell, of the Mesa school, spoke most interestingly on Texas history; topics concerning the annexation of Texas.

Two songs by the eighth grade were sung at the close of the program; (a) "Believe Ms if All Those Endearing Young Charms," (b) "Spanish Gypsy."

Miss Martha Pool was the accompanist.

Miss Leila Moore, the director of music in the schools, had the musical program in charge.
